St. Benedict School Gets New Fitness Equipment

St. Benedict Catholic School, formerly known as ACES, will have a new look as students return for the upcoming school year.

The school grounds will feature new fitness equipment thanks to a grant received from the Heartland Youth Foundation entitled “Project Fit America”.

School Superintendent Diane Liebsch says the goal is to improve the quality of wellness among students.

A tentative location is picked out for the installation of the new equipment, which is made up of seven pieces that will be located in a 45 by 65 foot rectangle.

Liebsch says once installed, the equipment can be used by both students and local families.
