

<http://www.MSCNews.net/news/index.cfm?nk=27552>

Horton Man Placed on Probation in Child Abuse Case

(KNZA)--A Horton man convicted of amended charges in a child abuse case has been placed on probation.

27-year-old Matthew Adams was given a suspended prison sentence Monday in Brown County District Court on two counts of aggravated battery and placed on 24-months supervised probation.

Adams pleaded no contest to the charges in July. He had originally been charged with aggravated battery and felony child abuse.

He was convicted of shaking a child born last year, causing great bodily harm to the child.

Adams was arrested in January following a joint investigation by the Horton Police Department and Brown County Sheriff's Department.

Many Signals Communications