Former prison staffer earns probation

TECUMSEH, Neb. (AP) - A former staff member has been given probation for smuggling a cellphone to an inmate at a state prison in southeast Nebraska.
Court records say 21-year-old Sarah Murillo was sentenced Monday in Johnson County District Court to two years of probation and was ordered to perform five hours of community service. She'd pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawful possession of a firearm.
The records say Murillo often worked in the Tecumseh prison's nursing facility, where the inmate was a porter.
