

New life planned for former restaurant

(KAIR)--The remodel of the former Atchison Long John Silver's is apparent to passersby, with the 626 Main Street location being prepared for a new life.

According to a press release issued Thursday by property owner Karen Seaberg, a new business will set up shop inside the building.

Seaberg says The Atchison Bread Company is a partnership between herself and Marie Griffin, who serve as co-founders of the operation.

According to the release, the business will produce a variety of fresh whole grain artisan breads.

Although the primary focus will be building a wholesale business to supply restaurants and businesses in both Atchison and surrounding communities, The Atchison Bread Company will also have retail hours.

External construction is ongoing, with internal renovations, and equipment installation, set to happen over the course of the next few months.

A late August or early September opening is expected.
