

2021 Topeka Farm Show canceled

Tradexpos Inc. has cancelled the 2021 Topeka Farm Show scheduled for April 13th, 14th, and 15th.

Tradexpos postponed the show from its original dates in January, in hopes that Covid-19 would be controlled enough to sustain a trade show.

After the Stormont Vail Events Center was converted to a Vaccine Distribution Center, alternate locations were vetted. Ultimately, no plan was able to balance the logistics of the farm show with the safety required to support the community. Show Director Brock Nelson said, “We’ve held off on making this decision for as long as possible, but it’s important to us that our exhibitors have enough advanced notice to adjust their marketing plans and undo their preparation for the show. Everyone involved wants to have the show, however we understand the current conditions regarding the pandemic, just won’t allow that at this time.”

The Topeka Farm show will return on January 11th, 12th, and 13th 2022 at the Stormont Vail Events Center.

Many Signals Communications