

Deadline approaching to apply for NRCS funding

(KLZA)-- Farmers and ranchers interested in preventing erosion, improving soil health, conserving water and wildlife, or making other natural resource conservation improvements to their property are encouraged to apply now for funding available from the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS). Those interested in receiving funding this year should sign up before November 17, 2023.

NRCS accepts conservation program applications on a continuous basis but sets application cutoff dates as funding allows. According to NRCS Nebraska State Conservationist Rob Lawson, there are several options still available to producers for this year.

Individuals interested in applying for these conservation programs may do so at any time, but applications need to be submitted by November 17th to be considered for this year- funding. For more information about conservation programs and other assistance available, contact your local NRCS field office or visit www.nrcs.usda.gov/NE

Many Signals Communications