Short Week for Missouri Lawmakers

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - Missouri lawmakers will have a short work week when they return to the state Capitol.

No business was scheduled Monday because of the Easter holiday. Lawmakers are to return Tuesday and have six weeks remaining before their mandatory adjournment May 18.

House leaders say they plan to consider several constitutional amendments, including proposals on initiative petitions, guns and a property tax exemption.

In the Senate, the Appropriations Committee is continuing discussion about the upcoming year's budget. The committee has scheduled a budget hearing for noon on Tuesday.
