

<http://www.MSCNews.net/news/index.cfm?nk=17020>

UNL Extension Offers Animal Care Website

(KTNC) - University of Nebraska Extension has compiled an online resource of neutral research based information about animal care. Richardson County Extension Educator Lindsay Chichester says topics range from general animal care to species-specific information. (play audio :27 “provided as well.”)

The website has resources written with youth in mind, but Chichester says parents and general consumers are also invited to use the resources as well. (play audio :24 “of their animals.”)

Much of the information found on the site comes from experts at the University of Nebraska, though Chichester says articles also come from other universities and extension systems. (play audio :14 “research based sources.”)

You can visit the website at 4-H dot U-N-L dot E-D-U backslash resource animal care. (4h.unl.edu/resourceanimalcare).

MSC News