Atchison Native to Give Archaeology Presentation

(KAIR) -- The Atchison County Historical Society and the Kanza Chapter of the Kansas Anthropological Association will sponsor a special program Saturday evening beginning at 5:30 in the Santa Fe Depot - as part of Kansas Archeology Month.

It will feature Atchison native Brendon Asher, who speak on his work at the Snowmass, Colorado Mastodon Site and allow attendees to look back at Kansas during that same Ice Age era.

Asher is currently completing his Ph.D. at the University of Kansas in archaeology/anthropology.

He has conducted archaeological investigations in two countries and eleven states, but focuses primarily on Kansas, Colorado, and Nebraska.

His primary interest is in researching the earliest peoples in North America within the Great Plains region.

The program is free and open to the public.
