(KAIR)--Two longtime educators at Atchison County Community School in Effingham have been honored with a place in the district's "Wall of Fame".

USD 377 Superintendent Andrew Gaddis says former band teacher Paul Lundgren and vocal teacher Eileen Wohletz were given the distinction during Wednesday evening's school board meeting.

"It was a unanimous decision, an overwhelming response, and very well deserving of those two high quality educators."

Gaddis says Lundgren and Wohletz will be formally recognized during a special ceremony, likely to be held very soon.

"You're not going to find anybody that hasn't gone to the schools over the past – probably 30, 40 years – that don't know and highly respect those educators. It's going to be a benefit to the school."

Regarding the ceremony itself, Gaddis says it will either be held in person, or perhaps live streamed, as they look over various options, with safety a priority.
